BRAND IDENTITY DESIGN

Overview

Rootopia is an all-in-one plant companion app designed to make plant care simple, accessible, and enjoyable. The project re imagines the journey of owning plants by bringing discovery, purchasing, personalized care, and community into a single experience. Rather than creating just another plant marketplace, the goal was to build a trusted digital companion that helps people grow with confidence, regardless of their experience level.

The Approach

The concept was built around one core idea:
plant care should feel effortless, not overwhelming.

Research revealed that many plant owners struggle with conflicting advice, inconsistent care routines, and guidance that doesn't consider their local environment. These insights shaped a solution that combines intelligent reminders, personalized care recommendations, plant identification, and a curated marketplace within one seamless experience.

Every interaction was designed to reduce uncertainty and make caring for plants feel approachable. The visual identity reflects this philosophy through earthy colors, clean typography, and a minimal interface inspired by nature—creating a product that feels warm, grounded, and dependable.

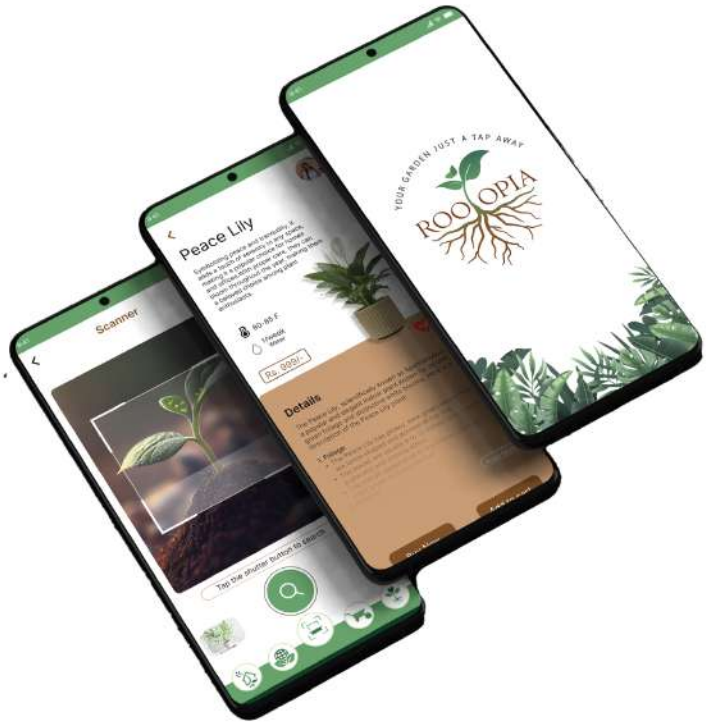

Outcome

The result is a plant care platform that supports users beyond the moment of purchase. Rootopia transforms the entire ownership journey by helping users discover the right plants, understand their needs, and build lasting care habits through personalized guidance and smart reminders.
